Big Shrine Circus Here Next Week STATE INCOME TAX Strong on Horses

No circus that has ever visited A lanta carries such a wonderful colsection of horses as does Sparks circus, which appears here next Monday and Tuesday under the auspices of Yaarab Temple. Miss Minnie Thomp son's contribution to the show, which the posters term an "equestrian spec-'acle," is a splendid one. She is a projege of the late Buffalo Bill who be-stowed upon her the title of "America's Greatest Horsewoman." Miss Thomp-son's stable includes such well known norse show and blue ribbon winners as Caesar, champion high jumper of the world; Baron DeBell, Winston Guy, Fred, Mabel, Kingston, Vena and Sambe, well as cheese, vena and Guy, Fred, Mabel, Kingston, Vena and Sambo, as well as others of equally wide reputation.

In addition to Miss Thompson's stable will be found Sultana, of the world-renowned Madame Marantette stable and was for several years a tilue ribbon winner at the New York and Boston horse show. Sultana is ridden by no less a personage than Florence Mardo, a daughter of Madam Marantette.

All winter long buyers were visiting the American markets for horses suitable for circus purposes and as a result perfectly matched blacks, bays suitable for circus purposes and as a result perfectly matched blacks, bays and grays by the score are to be found with the Sparks circus.

Of course pretty and intelligent horses only form a small percentage of the attraction of this big tented enterprise and included in the trained animal displays will be found the Captain Tiebor musical and acrobatic seals and seal lions. Hurd's troupe of marand sea lions, Hurd's troupe of mar-velously trained pigs, besides the rid-ing baboons, roller skating bears and numerous other trained wild and do mestic animals.

Inclement weather will not interfere with the circus this year in the least. The Jackson street show grounds are high and well drained; there are good sid-walks all around the circus lot, and the streets are paved. In addition the Sparks people have a brand new waterproof "big top" and the main entrance will be close to the sidewalk. So you might just as well drop into Tom Pitts' Five Points store today and get your choice of reserved seats. Prices are: 75 cents for adults and 50 cents for children, reserved seats being 55 cents extra. The parade will be held Money. day at 10:30 a.m. Yaarab band will give a free concert in the big top Sunday at 3 p. m.

WARNING ISSUED AGAINST RABIES AMONG ANIMALS

Alarming increases in rabies among dogs and other domestic animals was reported Tuesday at the office of Dr. T. F. Sellers, director of the state laboratory who urges all citizens of the state to take every possible pre-caution against the spread of these diseases. He said complete informa-tion concerning the best methods to be used when a mad dog runs amuck can be obtained by addressing a request for literature to the state laboratory. In January, 1922, there were 12 heads of dogs sent to the laboratory for examination for rabies from Fulton county and during the same month in 1921 not a single head was sent. In January, 1922, the laboratory furnished pasteur treatment in 43 cases as compared to four cases the previous year in the same month.

A. D. G. Cohn, southern field director of the American Jewish Reliet campaign that closes on April 1, will return to his home in New York Saturday. After a short stay there he will proceed to Atlantic City for a short rest.

will proceed to Atlantic City for a short rest.

Mr. Cohn has been working in behalf of the Jewish Relief since last September, first in the west, then in New England, and since September in the south, where he has had charge of the southern drive. In every state where he worked the campaign has proven a success and his energetic work has won him the hearty congratulations of the national committee.

Phil De La Penha, of New York, who has been Mr. Cohn's assistant throughout the southern campaign, and who is now completing a successful campaign in Savannah, was in Atlanta Tuesday to report that the city by the sea will soon "go over the top."

Miss Ida Goldstein, who has been secretary in the state and city headquarters, will go to Boston next Monday, there to make her home.

weather, established the world's record for continuous flying for 26 hours, 19 minutes and 35 seconds.

The plane, Captain Amundsen explained, was being supplied by Mr. Larsen at his own expense, and the contribution which the airplane manufacturer would make to the expedition would represent about $40.000. The plane has been thoroughly renovated and test flights will be made from Central park, Long Ieland, beginning next Thursday.

Amundsen is confident that the monoplane—the eyes of his vessel, Maude—will be able to do its work well, permitting great sallies to either side of the vessel and sending warnings of ice fields and dangerous currents that should be avoided.

The plane already has tried its wings in a temperature 48 degrees below zero. Last year Mr. Larsen made a 6,000 mile trip in the ship from New York to the Arctic circle, by way of Edmonton, Alberta, and the plane handled as well as if she was being blown into the balmy airs of Florida. Amundsen said today he expected seldom to encounter a temperature lower than that in which the plane already has been tested.

Besides the monoplane, Amundsen will take an aero scout plane, a smaller British ship, which will be used only within the vicinity of the Maude. The monoplane, with a cabin in which 11 persons have been carried, will be self-supporting. She is so equipped that she can carry large stocks of fuel and provisions, and to her can be adjusted skis, wheels or pontoons, so that she can land on any surface. She has been thoroughly renovated. With her aid, Amundsen believes he can lachart a 200-mile wide course across Amundsen's visit to Washington is to complete arrangements for wireless relays.

His radio plant at present consists of flashing reports from airplane to the mother ship, which is equipped with transmitting apparatus of 2,000 miles radius. The ship then will communicate with Nome, Alaska, and Nome will relay to the powerful station at St. Paul on the Bering sea. St. Paul will send the messages directly to Washington.

Amundsen said he would take ten men with him when he sets out for Nome to drift to Spitzbergen with food sufficient for seven years. Because of the ice and dangerous currents in the north polar basin, the explorer believes the only investigation possible will be from the air.

Besides Omdel, Amundsen will take with him another pilot, Odd Dahl, also a Norwegian, who will have charge of the Avro and who now is proceeding to Seattle by way of the Panama canal.

Sends Orders to Toledo Fac-

"Atlanta branch has orders on file in Toledo for March shipment, which, if shipped, will be in excess of all shipments to this branch during 1921. Will appreciate it if you can stretch a point and ship them, sure," is the message which John N. Willys, president of the Willys-Overland, sent to his salesmanager in Toledo from Atlanta Tuesday.

Mr. Willys is in Atlanta for a visit with leal branch officials, and to attend a convention of dealers here Wednesday. He was so favorably surprised with this remarkable showing of the Atlanta branch that he immediately wired Toledo to do everything possible to make this a binner month for Atlanta territory. These cars if shipped will make the largest business ever handled by this branch in any one month, save one, and will exceed the entire sales for 1021 by a comfortable margin.

MUSCLE SHOALS.

Conditions revealed by the inspection of the Muscle Shoals ject by a joint committee of United States senators and members of the house of representatives seem to justify the conclusion that the bid of Henry Ford cannot consistently be accepted by the government unless it is amended so as to disassociate the Gorgas nitrate plant on Warrior river from the Muscle Shoals properties; also, that if the Ford bid is so amendad the Detroit manufacturer stands an excellent chance of winning out over his competitors for the award. Our staff correspondent, Mr.

Homon - who is accompanying the congressional party on its tour of inspection-epitomizes the situation in a statement of what he terms the three following "paramount facts:"

"First, that the Warrior river wer plant at Gorgas cannot be successfully separated and that the government unit cannot be operated friendly lease in purchase or condemnation of the power company connecting unit; second, that the sensus of opinion among the 23 ambers of the upper and lower essary for Ford to either disassociate the Gorgas plant from the Muscle Shoals properties, in his of-fer, or accept a quit-claim of the government right without any guarantee as to an unclouded title, f he is to be further considered seriously to final decision of the properties, and, third, that if Henry the government from acquiring the Gorgas titles, and will agree to the expense of the flowage right at Muscle Shoals dam No. 3 the abutments are also own ed by the Alabama Power company the committees will be disposed to mmend the acceptance of his ontract agreement as to the manu ture of nitrates for fertilizers as per his tentative agreement."

There is no doubt that the preponderance of public sentiment throughout the south, and throughaut the rural districts of the middle west as well, is in favor of the acceptance of the Henry Ford bid.

This sentiment is predicated upon the belief that the application of the ingenuity, enterprise and the financial resources of Henry Ford to the development of the Muscle Shoals project would result in tremendous benefit to the agricultural interests of the country.

Undoubtedly the Muscle Shoals evelopment under the hand of Henry Ford would surpass anything in the nature of an industrial enterprise that the south, if not the country at large, has ever expe-

It would create employment, at high wages, for hundreds of thouds of men who are now idle: it obably would mean the curtailnt of fertilizer costs to the mers of the country to the exent of millions of dollars annually, and it would put millions of ars in circulation as a result increasing the buying power of se working men and farmers. ice, it would stimulate manucturing, transportation and all other lines of business, not only the south, but to a proportion ate extent, everywhere in the tended to improve them. Statistics compiled from authoritative records reveal a state of affairs which amply justifies ornoted and co-operative effort tive, fickle, fastidious, fashionable, calculated to faise the general nealth standard of the negro race.

It is so big in possibilities, and means so much to the south and to the whole country, that nothing should be permitted to stand in the way of it.

For instance, in one group of 21 northern, western and southern states, with an aggregate population of 71,621,632, it is shown that the death rate among the white people is 13.5, while that among the negroes is 20.5 per thousand: and among the strictly rural population of those states the white death rate averages 12.5, while that of the negro race is 17.3. A reduction of this abnormally high mortality rate among the negro group is the primary purpose back of this health movement.

The records show that in Atlan ta the financial loss occasioned each year by the sickness and death of negroes averages around

$2,270,000. Much of this loss is caused by sickness that is preventable by the observance of modern principles of sanitation, hygiene and correct living, and it is estimated that the productive value of negro lives that could be saved through im provement of these conditions, is not less than $1,500,000. This movement is directed no only toward development along sanitation and health lines exclusively, but toward the improve ment of the physical appearance of the various communities popu lated largely by negroes, and toward the improvement of the negro race morally and in point of civic

Interesting Lecture On Christian Science

"Christian Science: Religion Made Practical," was the subject of an inter-esting lecture delivered Tuesday night at the Christian Science church, Peachtree and Fifteenth streets, by Clarence W. Chadwick, C. S. B., member of the board of lectureship of member of the board of lectures, the mother church, First Church Christ, Scientist, of Boston.

the mother church, First Unuren of Christ, Scientist, of Boston.

In developing his topic, Mr. Chadwick said:
Some of the terms employed in Christian Science to define deity to human consciousness are love, truth, life, spirit and mind. To one trained to believe in a God of wrath and vengeance, these symptoms for God, when studied in the light of Christian Science, reveal an entirely new sense of heaven and earth and man.

Love's invitation, given to the world frough Christ Jesus twenty centuries ago, "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest" (Mat. 11:28), is relierated today in the Christian Science heavy laden, and I will give you rest" (Mat. 11:28), is relierated today in the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, the discoverer and founder of Christian Science. It comes with healing in its wings, revealing the sacred mission of Christian Science. It comes with healing in its yesus, to each and to demonstrate the lessor of divine love. If we would become acquainted with the Father, we must learn to love, for what saith the Scripture's "Beloved, let us love one another: for love is of God; and everyone that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God. He that loveth not knoweth not God: for God is love" (I John 4:7-8).

The Saviour.

God, and knoweth God. He that loveth not knoweth not God; for God is love" (I John 4:7-8).

The Saviour.

Mrs. Eddy's teachings have thrown so much light upon the life and mission of the great Saviour of men, that the whole world rises to call her bleased. She says in substance to her followers: "If you profess to tove him, keep als commandments." Then she explains, in unmistakable terms, how we are to prove our obedience.

When once asked whether she believed in the atonement of Christ, she replied: "I do; and this atonement becomes more to "e since it includes man's redemption from sice and the atonement of Christ, she replied: "I do; and this atonement becomes more to "e since it includes man's redemption from sice and dore Christ as never before" (Miss p. 96). Demonstration is the power of divine love made practical to humanity. One cannot grap the meaning of scientific demonstration is the power of divine love mill one learns how to feel and to express ove for all mankind. The true Christin Scientist strives to abide in a healing, conclousness, one characterized by genuine humility and confidence, as well as thankfulness for God's goodness and mercy.

Does Christian Science heal the sick? Is question that is answered today in a meet world may be found living witnesses to the ending power of Christian Science. These recipients of God's blessings will tell you that they owe a debt of endless gratitude, not only to His Son. Christ Jesus, but to the beloved leader of the Christian Science. These recipients of God's blessings will tell you that he world world.

Bealing Explained.

A correct or scientific understanding of God heals because it cannot help healing. A very cov of swiftlen light that floods hum.

A correct or accentific understants. A correct of accentific understants. God heals because it cannot help healing. Healing through Christ, truth, takes place as naturally as the shining of the sun. Every ray of spiritual light that floods humin consciousness declares the presence, power, and glory of God and His Christ. How, then, can it avoid dispelling the dark shadows of finite sense? Truth heals because it has no affinity with error; love heals because it has no affinity with matter. Treatment in Christian Science means done something for the sick according to an understood principle, instead of experimenting upon them with poisonous drugs, and then waiting for days, weeks, and sometimes for months, to see whether they get well. Christian Science treatment gives sight it the billed end hearing to the deaf, by doing something for them which no other form of treatment ever has done or ever can de.

RAILROAD LEADER IS FORUM SPEAKER

W. R. Cole, president of the N., C. & St. L. railroad, has been invited by the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce to speak on railroad matters at the forum luncheon to be held at noon on April 12. Mr. Cole will touch on cost of operation, co-operation between railroads and the public and making roads of the nation a greater force in industrial life.

A number of business men have approached W. O. Foote, president of the chamber of commerce, with the suggestion that a speaker of recognized authority on the railroad situation be asked to address the membership. In compliance with this request, Mr. Foote has arranged to have Mr. Cole speak.

San Francisco, March 28 .- The state late today rested its case in the third manslaughter trial of Rescoe Atlanta and vicinity probably will experience showers and thunderstorms today according to the weather forecast issued here. Accompanying the rain the temperature will drop, so that the day will be cooler than Tuesday. Rainfall in the state has been insufficient to raise the rivers. Report from stations along the weatenways C. Arbuckle with testimony offered by Miss Virginia Briggs, a surprise witness. The defense immediately began its presentation of evidence by calling Adolph Juel, head of the police identification bureau.

Miss Briggs, who is secretary to Dr. Francis Wakefield, at whose sanitarium Miss Virginia Rappe died, following a party in Arbuckle's hetel rooms, testified that Miss Rappe told her that "Arbuckle took me by the arm and threw me on the bed and put his weight on me; and after that I do not know what happened." At the conclusion of Miss Briggs' testimony the detense moved that her statements be stricken out as hearsay. The motion was denied.

Miss Briggs explained that she had gone into Miss Rappe's room on the day of her death. "She asked me about the amount of the hospital bill that would be due," said the witness.

"Arbuckle Responsible."

Cross-examined by Attorney Gavin McNab, of the defense, as to whether it was not true that she had telephoned him asking that Miss Rappe's bill be paid and threatening that if it was not she would tell her story to the district attorney, Miss Briggs made an absolute denial. She also denied that McNab had told her to give any evidence she might have to the district attorney, although admitting that he had told her to see that official, she presumed, about the bill.

Feared Notoriety.

Seattle, Wash., March 28.—While three of his photographs graced the Rogues' gallery in the central station here and detectives sought him throughout the Pacific northwest, Fred L. Trombly, wanted as a suspect connected with robberies, served six months on the local police force, investigators: announced today. The ergtwhile patrolman is now doing time behind the bars awaiting trial. His "gallery card" credited him with a term for grand larceny, and escape from the state reformatory, a six months' sentence for petty larceny and a sexitence of six to fifteen years in the state penitentiary for theft of diamonds. Miss Briggs declared that she had not told her story before or volunteered any information because she shrank from the notriety. She added that she had been summoned to testify only last Saturday.

A portion of the alleged attack by Arbuckle on Miss Rappe was enacted by the denfense in an effort to show that had force been used, finger prints on the hotel room door would have been blurred and smudged beyond identification.

Juel testified that the finger prints on the door of the hotel room in which

A tentative organization was perfected at this meeting, when it was announced that at an early date another meeting will be held in Athens for the purpose of enrolling the women of this part of the state.

Chairmen for each of the fourteen counties were appointed, and immediately following the general session these officials had a conference in exhausting the said.

Congressional district, and others.

The keynote of the session was the need for the organization of the republican party in the state because of the contention that Georgia's greatest need today is two political parties.

Mr. Phillips declared that "Georgia can never accomplish any effective governmentel work unless there are two sides of every political question." It has said further that the principles of the republican party advocates construction, action and forward looking. The personnel was exceptionally fine, incuding national, state and local leaders. The discussions of the triotopics, Leadership, Membership and Catizenship, were distinguished for "worth, wit and wisdom," and their Christ-like spirit.

This gathering came in the third of the five series of one-city-to-a-state institutes being held during February and March under the auspices of the national and state unions. Constituting the third series are the institutes at Parkersburg, W. Va.; Nashville, Tenn.; Birmingham, Ala.; Lake City, Ya.

The national speakers for this group are: Mrs. Frances Pride Parks, Evanston, Ill., corresponding secretary and the chief of the million members' campaign in the national W. C. T. That Christian women register now and vote for prohibition officials in the November elections; that the law observance star cards be placed in the windows of homes and business houses indicating that there are those within who revere American ideals, who support its constitution which includes the eighteenth amendment; that the dues of every listed member be paid by April 17; that every member gain three new paid members during the three weeks' intensive work for a tripled membership between April 24 the three weeks' intensive work for a tripled membership between April 24 and May 13; that every union organize a union; that every union mother a loyal temperance union; the urgency, feasibility and possibility of these points were emphasized by most of the speakers.

The deliberations began with a consecration service led by Mrs. Marvin Williams, of Augusta, state vice president and superintendent of the department of work among colored people. She used as a Scripture lesson, the Georgia W. C. T. U. motto, chosen by the second president, Mrs. Jennie Hart Sibley, late of Union Point, in a time of Red sea experience. Mrs. Williams recalled how the W. C. T. U. had heeded the divine command to "go forward" and had passed safely through the Red sea of social ostracism in its early history, and later the Red sea of legislation

Interesting missionary women. Opens Courthouse With Celebration

Barrow County

Winder, Ga., March 28.—(Special.)
Barrow county celebrated the opening of its new courthouse here Monday with a great home products dinner, attended by many distinguished visitors from surrounding counties.

Farmers, merchants and professional men all met and made the day one of personal contact imbued with a spirit of the county of the same courthouse.

The principal addresses were delivered in the handsome new courthouse.

Dr. Andrew M Soule, president of the State College of Agriculture, spoke on farming problems, and complimented the county on the progress it has made in adopting modern methods of cultivation. He urged the practice of diversification on a broad scale.

Among the other speakers were W.O. Foote, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, and B. S. Barker, secretary of the same organization, M. M. Davies, J. R. Griffith, M. M. Holloway, of Atlanta, and Judge George C. Thomas, of Athens. J. D. Quillian, of Winder, made the welcome address, after the exercises had been opened by Judge W. C. Parker and W. C. Stickney. The dinner served Monday was composed almost wholly of Barrow county products.

Miss Raoul Speaks

To Business Women.

In a talk on the city charter, made to the Y. W. C. A. league of clubs at the Y. W., Peachtree Areade, Tuesday night at 7 o'clock, Miss Eleanore Raoul pointed out the difference between the Atlanta plan charter as advised by the League of Women Voters and the Choate charter. That the Atlanta plan charter and the Choate charter are very much alike in general detail, though there are vital differences, was stressed by Miss Racul wital differences, was stressed by Miss Raoul.

She pointed out that under the Choate charter a mayor is elected for four years and given even more power than is given to the city manager under the Atlanta plan. Under the Atlanta plan, Miss Baoul

Under the Atlanta plan, Miss Baoul showed that the city manager is appointed by council and that it would be impossible for the twelve councilmen to make this appointment before election, even though each individual candidate might like to do so. That when the manager is appointed, his job is to run the different departments well and if he does not, council will dismiss him.

Miss Raoul concluded her talk by saying that one principle of city government that is safe to stick to is that all positions that call for expert training should be filled by appointment and all that determine policies and pass laws for the people should be elected. She concluded with the statement that voters do not have the time or the means at hand to investigate as to the technical qualifications of candidates for administrative offices.

cations of candidates for administrative offices.

Once a month the four farge clubs of business and professional women of the Y. W. C. A. hold a joint meeting. Their interest in a new charter for Atlanta brought out a large body to hear Miss Raoul.

Sally's side.

"Mrs. Brabant, Mr. Owen—" Sally heard the names without realizing what else the girl was saying—only at that last name did she find herself capable of looking at him again.

"Owen—" she repeated it deliberately. "You look so much like a man I used to know. Mr. Owen—a man named Keith Gilbert."

"Oh, yes," he laughed, but she saw that the hands that held his cap were suddenly clenched till the knuckles were white. "You surely don't mean that chap who was arrested for bootlegging on a wholesale scale, do you? I read about him in the papers."

"Yes, I do," she answered; a curious sort of courage, a raging defiance, mastered her fear of him. "He was arrested not long ago."

"And escaped," he added. "He got away clean and they can't find any trace of him. By the way, Mrs. Brabant, I'd like to play with you this morning; may I?"

She gasped at his audacity, even as she realized that this was practically a command. If she refused there was no telling what he might do. There were several people on the veranda, but they were all some distance away. The members of her own party had gone down to the first tee, and were too far away to be of immediate assistance if she should need them.

"I'm sorry to refuse you, but I'm playing with some friends—Graham Browne, and the Lanes." She looked him squarely in the eyes as she pronounced Browne's name; surely he would readily expose the fact that he was appearing under an assumed name.

"Yes?" He seemed only mildly interested. "I wonder.—I think I've met Keith Gibbert, always labeled "dangerous," and through him associates

She nodded, wretchedly. She could not help marveling at his recklessness. "But I'd much rather play with Mr. Browne—we have a bet on the match," she told him.

"Then why don't you play with me?" the pretty girl at his side cut in. "Come on—I want you to, really, and she doesn't."

She was a charming thing, a debutate barely out of the flapper stage, and her audacity in going straight after what she wanted reminded Sally of Patricia Loring.

"We'll play right behind them, so if this awful crush you've suddenly developed on Mrs. Brabant makes you want to gaze admiringly at her all the time, you'll have a chance to gratify your longing."

With a sinking heart Sally realized that she could not escape him, and went down to join the others with a dragging step. The links were in excellent condition; the fresh spring air was invigorating, delightful. Ordinarily she would have begun the game full of zest. But for her the sun had clouded over and the day's beauty was dimmed.

clouded over and the day's beauty was dimmed.

She was too nervous to play well; out of practice, though Barbara was, she played a better game than Sally did, and finally on the fourth hole Sally sent the ball that she and Browne were playing straight into the weeds that approached the course on that side.

"Oh, I'm playing abominably!" she cried, ready to cry with veration and fright, as the caddies went scuffling into the woods to search for the ball. "Why don't we let these people who are playing behind us go through, and rest a moment?"

"Good idea," exclaimed Andy, and sauntered back to meet Keith Gilbert and his companion. Browne had gone into the woods with Barbara, and Sally was alone for a moment. Watching Andy, she saw with distress that he talked for an instant with Keith, then followed the others into the woods. The girl who was with Keith had driven her ball into a bunker, and was playing it out, some distance back. As Keith apprached her, she sat grimly waiting. She could not run, could not escape him; she would face it out now, whatever he chose to do.

"I must see you alone," he told her,

"I must see you alone," he told her, curtly. "When will it be? There's no time to lose."

"I don't know—I can't—oh, I never want to see you again!" she cried in desperation.

"That makes no difference. When will you see me?"

"That makes no difference. When will you see me?"

She stared into his eyes for a long moment, hopelessly. They were merciless.

"You can't make me do it—I won't—"she began, but he caught her by the shoulder with a grasp so pitiless that it hurt.

"You will see me today or I will give the papers this whole story. I will implicate you in such a way that nothing you say can free you from the stain I'll put on your name. You'll be ashamed to face any one who's ever even heard of you. Now, how about it? Will you see me at once, or shall I let myself be arrested again and drag your into it?"

"But if I do as you ask what difference will it make?" she asked wearily.

ference will it make?" she asked wearily.

"I promise not to demand another interview," he replied. "See me just once more—and then send me away forever if you want to."

He was watching her with narrowed eyes, as intently as if a great deal were at stake. She wondered even then at his eagerness—accustomed as he was to taking what he wanted, she could not understand this attitude that was so new to him.

"Very well—I will see you at the dance here at the club this evening," she told him at last, and he turned away just as Andy Lane came out of the woods with the caddies.

Nineteenth Century History Class Meeting. AT WOMAN'S WINDOW

THE YOUNG GIRL It's hard to be a young girl. People dislike one so. They call rude, selfish, pleasure-loving, and especially they grow annoyed be one's pretty clothes. I cannot understand it. When I watch on street the average young girl of our day I take pleasure in her mess, her elegance; I cannot grudge her the natural delight she tain the impression she makes.

in the impression she makes.

I suspect that as we get on in years we grow old only if we forget. No woman can avoid being sixty if she lives so long, but she can avoid feeling sixty if she will remember how she felt at twenty. She shows realize that the overdressing of the young girl is the most natural thing in the world, that in a sense the girl can't help it. Consciously of unconsciously she is looking for her husband, and she can compete with other girls only by enhancing her own charms; also she likes to "dress up," like a child that wraps a carpet about its shoulders and proclaims that it is a Red Indian. Certainly she spends on clothes money that might be used to buy books, or to admit her to a nature-study class.

but she will have time enough for that. She has some forty years before her, many of them possibly sad; she is going to face problems, a husband, children, shortage of money. I feel that it is a little ungracious in elders who have had their good time to grudge the young girl what is after all a little holiday from life.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

New Danger Threatens.

For a moment the world swam about Sally; the floor of the veranda about Sally; the floor of the veranda seemed to rise toward her, and the gaily patterned chintz that covered the furniture of the living room behind him melted into a blur of vivid color. She closed her eyes, and leaned against the great pillar beside which she stood. She had supposed

Somehow she got control of herself and met those eyes that she had grown to hate, and fear. He was a striking figure as he stood there with the sunlit room behind him, his tweed golf clothes emphasizing the tall litheness of his figure. And as she stared he laughed, softly, mokingly. Sally shivered with apprehension. He had said that he would get cetti sent for Jeanne.

It was two days later that Bonnicetti sent for Jeanne.

His valet had called the Barstowe country place and the call was switched to the quaint little house where Jeanne was dawdling over coffee and the morning papers in the sunny little breakfast room. Barstowe had just left for his office in town and a trim maid in a gingham gown hummed over the dishes in the kitchen.

The shrilling of the telephone bell brought a thrill of apprehension to Jeanne's heart. She feared an influence that would spoil her happiness. For days she had regarded the (elephone as an instrument of portent.

It might be the medium which told her that the Barstowe burglars had been captured and the fake pearls discovered.

She fairly sighed with relief when an Italian voice informed her that Signor Bonnicetti who had been quite ill, was recovered sufficiently to see visitors and would deem it a great favor if the signora would call that afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Mechanically, Jeanne promised that she would do so, but added that she would like to bring Mr. Barstowe with her.

When she had hung up the receiver, Jeanne sat before the telephone stand, chin in hand, thinking deeply.

She wondered why Bonnicetti had sent for her. Surely she had discharged her obligation when she had returned the ruby necklace.

Then she remembered her promise to return to him the little Borgia cabinet in which the jewels had been resting all these years.

She would take it to him that afternoon. She never wanted to see the thing again, exquisite as it was. It recalled too much that was terrible; too many sleepless nights and days of torture. of torture. While she sat there, the telephone rang again.

This time it was Henry Harrison's voice speaking with an effort to control excitement.

"I say, Jeanne, I've great news for you. The railroad deal's gone through.

"I say, Jeanne, I've great news tor you. The railroad deal's gone through. We'll get more than we even dared hope. I'm glad I held out for real money. Now I tell you what you do. "But Henry—"
"Now forget it." he commanded.

After the first greetings were exchanged, Adels drew Jeanne aside. Her eyes were shining with excitement.

As she entered the car and seated herself by a window, she, thought with a sharp wince of pain of the last time she had ridden on this train. No? . . . Selby North has absconded. It seems that he has been using his social entree to get wealthy fools to invest in a company which doesn't even exist. His victims became suspicious during his long absence in the west, but he got wind of an investigation and skipped. They say he's gone to South America. And he'll never dare come back!"

Now she could almost hold up her head again proudly. The money that Harrison turned over to her from the sale of her property would wipe out that terrible debt that had overwhelmed her. She could pay to the last cent Madame Julie and the others who had hounded her so mercilessly in the last few months.

Getting

"I can't. I—I—Oh, God! Kill me! I gave you every chance. They forced me—forced me to bring you here."

Peter pushed her away from him in loathing and she lay still, only whimpering. On his hands and knees he crouched and began crawling, an inch at a time, toward the French window. He reached the window. A board creaked near him, toward the heart of that darkened vault. He spun about, aimed blindly, fired! The floor shook as an unseen shape collapsed and writhed within reach of his hand. And suddenly, as he groped, the wall spat out angry tongues of flame. A white-hot iron seemed to shoot through the flesh of his left arm. His left arm was useless—the bone cracked!

Groaning, he pushed himself back. His knees struck the sill, sild over, and he felt the floor of the veranda, He reached the edge, dropped to the ground and in dropping lost the revolver.

'Light glimmered in the room above. There occurred sounds of a struggle, a muffled oath, a short scream. The light silhouetted the slender figure of Romola Borris against the French window. Her arms went out in frantic appeal to the darkness, to him.

"Wait!" she cried in an awful voice. "I love you! Wait!"

A hand was elevated slowly behind her. A face appeared, carved with a mideous hrutality. Emiguel Borris, in whose lifting hand Peter now caught the glint of a revolver, attempted to crowd the girl to one side. In a frency she sprang upon him, seized the farrel of the revolver in her two hands and forced it against his side. Tiny red flames spurted out in a smoky circle where the muzzle was momentarily buried in the tangled black coat. And Emiguel Borris seemed to sink into the great room and entirely out of Peter's sight.

Romola leaned far into the darkness. "Run'! Buil For your life!"

And as Peter started to run other men of the Gray Dragon let loose a shower of buildts from adjoining windows. But the gods were for the time being on the side of Peter. These shots all went wild. Peter dove face, from which started two blue, bloodshot eyes. "You've got me cornered," he whispered harshly. "Why prolong the agony? Damn you, I'm unarmed!"

The red-faced man seized his shoulder, shook him. "Say, you young prize fighter," he sputtered, "you arunk? Crazy? Why the devil 've you been dodging me all over south thin today? The king of Asia's wireless man is laid up with typhoid. I want you to take her back to Frisco!"

The girl's grandmother appeared in the hatchway. She said something in the Cantonese dialect.

"A sampan is following," translated the girl, "but we are nearly there. In a moment you will be safe."

"Where?" demanded Peter.

"The ship, King of Asia," she told him. I told the red-faced one to be here, too, at midnight. He is a friend. Your fears were wrong, birahi."

The sampan lurched, scraping and tapping alongs surface rough and metallic. He guessed that the aampan was alongside the ship.

"I am not coming aboard: I am going back to my hotel," said the red-faced man. "You will not leave this ship? You will promise me that?"

"I will promise," said Peter gravely. "You, I presume, are Mr. J. B. Whalen, the Marconi supervisor?"

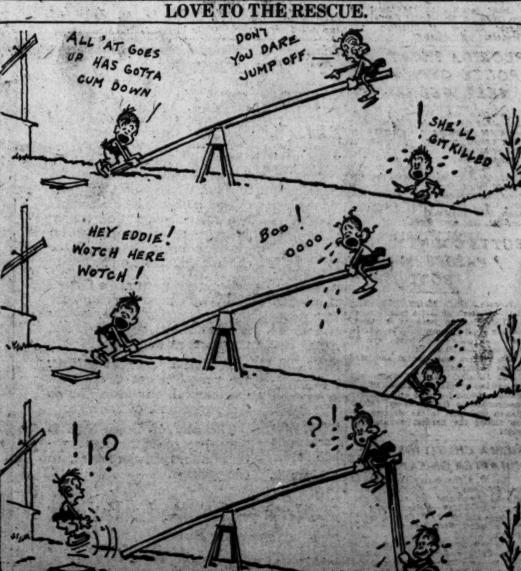

"You are going to the one you love, birahi," she said. "Before we part I want you— want you to—" and she hesitated. "Come now, my braye one." she added with an attempt at briskness. "You must go. Hurry!"

His mouth was puffed and bleeding.
He was unsteady on his legs. It seemed to me that one or two more punches from Budd's right hand would have stowed him away. And as the bell rang Stribling knew that he was heaten. As Bill Kaliska held up the imbattled paw of Atlanta's old-time favorite, little Stribling smiled a hurt, wan smile that was about half cry, then braced himself and walked over and congratulated Budd.

In the meantime, Budd was receiving an ovation. Johnny Glynn, his old manager and army comrade, yeaped in the ring to hug his former protege and the whole crowd stood up for ten minutes to cheer him. It was pretty plaif to see that, the victory wasn't a hard one for Budd to take. One eye, just a little puffed, was the sole damage he had sustained, and he had the proud realization that he had accomplished the thing that all the Atlanta gladiators had tried to accomplish and had failed.

Auburn Friday.

Kid Clay is scared about the Auburn games. The game with Camp Benning proved that Auburn has an aggregation to be feared. They went down to Columbus and beat Benning I to 0, and Benning had a former professional pitcher on the mound. Moulton, pitching for Auburn, tossed a wonderful brand of ball and was admirably supported. Auburn has put out the work on her baseball team. Which brings us back to the fact that Kid is scared.

Spring football is rolling right along. The fellows rolled over each other for sbout a half hour yesterday. Incidentally, rolling is such a good reducing exercise. Coach Alex has instituted a new idea into his training work. That of making the fellows do a little hurdle work. There are so many times that a man picks up and would be clear were it not for a single man. If you have a fair knowledge of hurdling, it is possible to sidestep the man and be on your way. It is a particualry good exercise for developing the legs, just the very part of the anatomy that is needed, in rolling back the other line. It might seem at first as though that such work is meant for backfield men alone, but think of the times that a line man catches the ball on the kickoff, or recovers a fumble in a broken field.

Defends Middleman.

The economical position of the wholesaler in the scheme of distribution was described by R. K. Rambo, of Atlanta, former president of the Southern Wholesale Dry Goods association. He said that talk of "eliminating the middlemman" probably will continue as long as people have troubles which they want to blame on someone, but that the wholesaler's place in business was too firmly founded on necessary service for him to ever be dislodged. He said the service of bringing goods from manufacturer to consumer was better and more heaply rendered by the trained and specialized wholesale operator than it could be in any other way.

fielders of the major leagues than in any of the other positions. The increasing difficulty of finding satisfactory right, fielders in these days, when right as shade more important than left, and more difficult than center (this because of walls, stands and other handicaps to good work), has caused some of the clubs to weaken the attacking force in that position in order to get better defensive work. Then, too, on some fields with extremely short right fields, the choice is between a hitter and one who can handle ground balls rapidly and throw fast and accurately. If the manager cannot find a alugger satisfied to watch balls sail over his head into the stands, he chooses a fast, hard-throwing fe.low—which probably accounts for the wide margin of difference between the right fielders.

Detroit, on account of terrific hitting power, takes the lead in the American league, while the skill, speed and hitting ability of Pep Young raises the Giants to first position in the rival league. The figures indicate that but for the fact his leg is bad, and troubled him during the greater part of last season, Young would show even greater margin of superiority than he now does.

BROWNS BECOME:

BROWNS BECOME

MORE FORMIDABLE. That St. Louis Brown outfit becomes more and more formidable when one studies the attacking strength of the outfield. It is a terrific attacking section, and the opposing pitchers have to go way down the list to find any weaknesses. The Cards, too, rank second in their league—which is no surprise to anyone who looks over the official figures even casually. Any team owning six outfielders who hit in the 300 class is darned dangerous to any pitcher, and insurance against the weakening effect of the St. Louis summer climate. You will discover, when we come to analyze the dope, that St. Louis has quife a handicap in this respect—which cuts its chances of winning a championship considerably.

It seems quite natural to see the Chicago White Sox up in third place again. Hooper, of course, cannot be kept out of that class, as he is one of the greatest outfielders of all time, and, even allowing that he has gone back, he hasn't met very many coming up. The figures show that Mitchell's outfit has a lot more attacking power than one would suspect. It was a bit of a mystery how Mitch managed to hold that team up in the race as long as he did last summer, but a powerful attacking outfield goes far to account tor it. Pittsburg hits up into first division. There is a lot of bone connected with that position on the Pirate team. and that, of course, detracts from the attacking force. I don't know how you fellows feel about it, but it is rather surprising to me to find Rrooklyn so low. Griffith, the real mainstay, is not as powerful in attack or as resourceful as some of the rivals, and neither is he extremely valuable in defensive work. The nature of the Brooklyn grounds gives fine o, portunities for advantages for the home team which Griffith does not seem to take advantage of. Whitted may work out there at times, and if he does those hits that bound off the fence, and more especially the ones that go onto foul ground, will be better handled. Brooklyn has shown notorious weakness in getting the ball back to the infield after long hits get past the fielders, and Whitted would help in that respect.

One of the first steps that will be taken after the organization is the installing of a locker system for the benefit of the players. As soon as the club is in shape to do so, a club-house will be constructed with all conveniences that the hardened golfer thinks of when he thinks of the game.

LaCaille, the French military champion.

In the third bout, however, Ronquet, from the French garrison at Strassburg, won a decision over Private George Gilstrap, the half-Cherokee middleweight—whereupon General Henry T. Carpentier hasn't yet regained his true form. His face is pasty and his body flabby. In his appearance he made little endeavor to knock over his man, but staged a few characteristic swings and a bit of good footwork. He let Criqui land at will, but once, in a flash of old-time spirit, he uncorked a stinger that staggered his opponent.

Leon Cadore started for the Robins, but after being hit for three runs, was replaced by Harry Shriever, a recruit from the Saginaw club of the Michigan-Ontario league, who was micked for aix hits and three runs.

Four Players Released.

Harbingers of the first alice in tas squad were heard tonight. Bill Richards, who made an impressive showing for a while in competition with "Dutch" Bernsen, has been earn to Columbia in the South Atlantic league where he is certain to prove valuable. Iteonard Mumford, the Atlanta semi-pro infielder; Lefty Cown and Dessaur, recruit pitchers, will also be included in the players to leave here in a day or two.

Another development of today was the decision by Prexy Spiller to bring, his players to Atlanta a full week ahead of the plan outlined at the start of the training season. The team leaves Friday night for Pensacola and will leave the Florida city Sunday night for Atlanta, where the spring workouts will continue, but behind closed gates for the benefit of the fans who might want to get a free glimpse of their prospective passimers. Spiller declared that he sees; little to choose between the temperature of Atlanta and Bay St. Louis at this time of year and he wints to have decady night on his return trip, although he orginally planned to stuy here a week.

The Louisville Colonels are in training at Pensacola and it will be this strong American association outfit that the Crackers battle Saturday and Sunday in the Florida city. The training Thursday will be along lines where the Atlantans have displayed weakness and officials of the Atlanta machine are looking for as good as an even break.

Lineup in Doubt.

Pensacola is quite a jump from this bailiwick. The team will leave here early Friday night and it will be the next morning before the scene of battle is reached. It would be foolish at this time to risk any prediction on the field by Captain Ellam but it will be the strongest possible combination he can arrange.

Should the Crackers succeed in humilitating the Coolnels, fans back home need have no further doubt concerning the quality of the players that will represent them in the Southern league this season. It will be a very severe test, as the Louisville team was regarded as the strongest in the minor.

French veterans.

The American and British legions assisted in making the event a notable affair, and the American boys on the Rhine contributed to the general enjoyment by taking two out of three of the international bouts. Private Johnny Meyers, a Pittsburg lightweight, took Sergeant-Major Evans, of the British army, anto camp, and Private "Kid" Murray, Philadelphia welterweigth, licked M. LaCaille, the French military champion.

In the third bout, however, Ronquet, from the French garrison at Strassburg, won a decision over Private in the minor league last season, besting the Baltimore Orioles in the "little world weries."

The chances are that Louisville will have the big edge in condition. Their blayers have been at Pensacola much longer than the Crackers have sojourned at Bay St. Louis, but one never can to be in, much better shape than it was last year when on that awful invasion to the Texas camps but we doubt seriously if the clan is ready for the kind of opposition that will be offered by the Colonels.

Bosses Seem Pleased.

Charlie Frank, manager, who is ill at his bungalow on the beach, accompanied the Atlanta chief to Stanislaus field yesterday and watched proceedings for some time. He expressed himself as being satisfied with the progress his men had shown during the two weeks' work.

All doubt concerning Roy Carlyle's status with the club was removed when Mr. Spiller stated that the former Oglethorpe star had won his spurs. "He will be looked after, don't worry about.

Spiller's determination to remain itrm in dealing with Red Wingo is unquestionably due to the progress made by Carlyle, who has been in Wingo's garden during the training season. The Cracker officials feel that there is nothing wrong permanently with "Dizzy's" game leg and a specialist will be called into consultation just as soon as the team reaches Atlanta. A decided improvement has been noted recently, and Carlyle, for the past several days, has been troubled none by his injury. This should prove good news to the Atlanta fans, who already know of Carlyle's ability at the national pastime.

Axe About to Fall.

The total collapse of what appeared to be a pennant winning aggregation last senson started with the downfall of the pitching staff. Too much was expected of several recruits whose names we won't mention and their failure left the burden altogether on the shoulders of Johnny Suggs and Cliff Markle. That is the accepted version of the tram's breakdown in 1921.

Perhaps it was on account of this that so much attention was paid to the pitchers for this season. It has taken this correspondent some time to arrive at the conclusion that Atlanta's pitching department should be one of the best in the league.

There have probably been many years in which the staff was better than the present one, but Southern league moguls, just as their big broth-ed all the tricks yet, of course, but Al Chipman, who was doing the catch-ing, asserted that Phil had succeeded in doing lots with the ball and pre-dicted that he would have little trouble in bringing about a real change of nace.

RADIO DEPARTMENT REAT ANTI-CRIME

cientists Work to Perfect Apparatus to Show Photos of Criminals.

BY EUGENE S, BISBEE.
During a recent visit to New York,
the inventor of telephotography, douard Belin, of Paris, predicted that the possibilities of the electric age in the transference of visual aformation were boundless. This binion is shared by scientists of Amerare, who are alert to every developtent of both wire and radio transtission and who, almost as a unit, oncur in the forecast of radio's rapidy growing importance to every branch ment of both wire and radio transmission and who, almost as a unit, concur in the forecast of radio's rapidly growing importance to every branch of science and general achievement.

Argument is made that if pictures can be sent by a telegraph instrument over a wire, a similar picture can be stansferred by electricity by means of an electric wave passing through the sther without the aid of wires. The claim is made by the advocates that such results may be attained by the simple expedient of synchronizing perfectly the existing machinery at each end of a current that is adapted to devices used in the recording of visual impressions. Perfect portrait photographs of persons already have been telegraphed between New York and St. Louis both ways and reproduced in newspapers by the Belin process, and the argument is that such photographs may just as well be transmitted by electric current without the assistance of wires. In other words, by radio-telegraphy, Belin has recently improved and extended the field of his machine's potentialities by transmitting over a wire in France a reproduction of finger prints made by the Bertillon method for the apprehension of criminals and others wanted for any reason.

This newly invented apparatus has been adopted by the French government and has been installed at several of the frontier cities in France, and connected with the central office in preventing the escape of violators of the law. The transmission of a complete reproduction of a finger print from its source to another point several hundreds of miles apart is said to require but a quarter of an hour. This is quite fast enough to have a print in the hands of every police officer within twenty or thirty miles of the initial point from the mament of starting it on its way and would seem to greatly increase the advantages of the authorities over the criminal speking to escape the meshes of the law.

The Telesterograph.

The Telesterograph.

This instrument is called a "tele This instrument is called a "telesterograph" and operates on principles similar to those of the original Belin inventions for telephotographic reproduction. There is a copper cylinder that is operated by clock work, attached to which is a small interrupter holding a needle. When the current passes through as the cylinder revolves the needle lifts every time it meets a line on the film of the picrure being sent. This breaks the current and the receiving instruments at the other end of the line, to which, is

The picture is finished just as in any other photographic negative. It sounds sim-ple but it took a lot of thinking and a lot of experimenting to accomplish

This accomplishment having been nown to scientists all over the world or some time, experimentation by any of them has resulted in proving, theory at least that like results n theory, at least, that like results an be obtained with an instrument imilar to the Belin machine, but dapted to radio transmission instead f being confined in its scope to wire of being confined in its scope to wire work.

So much for the Belin system of photographic transmission for criminal identification. Applying it to radio is another matter. There is just one little word connected therewith that spells Trouble with a capital "T." It is static.

Statics is pretty-well known to engineers as that branch of mechanics that treats of the relations that must subsist among forces in order that they may produce equilibrium, and of the effects of such forces, as on the figure of bodies. It is the science of bodies at rest.

Trouble With Static.

But static is another matter. Wireless telegraphy is such a youthful science that the very word static is not defined in dictionaries a few years old. To the ordinam operator it merely means a condition of the elements that makes it difficult for him to work his machine. Such definition is sufficient for the purpose of this article, but static is the one great bugbear, the one ugly duckling, the one tremendous obstacle that nature interposes whenever man reaches out and feels the thrill of elation at the belief that at last he has controlled the mystic powers of the ether and harnessed them to Ms will. He is working wonderfully with some distant station, every air al clear and distinct. It is at nic t, cold and starlit, and the sip of the intercepted wave as it strikes his atedna and alips down and into his al clear and distinct. It is at at, cold and starlit, and the sip of intercepted wave as it strikes his one and slips down and into his avers is a delight to his soul. Suddly there reaches his cars a suction of jabbering stutters, then once. If his station is ashore he as out of his window to see what a happened to the sky. If an opether aboard a ship he may wonder the compass is doing anything to a or if the rhythmic clang of the chinery driving the vessel is intering with his work. Nothing of sort is the matter. That's static. That is the sole reason why at prescribed as photographs and finger nts cannot be accomplished. The is steady. The ether is not. We not know what it is, except to fithat it is a disturbed condition of atmosphere which the ear will not drive but which a delicate machine ariably will. It is a good deal like conversation between two men in

Lesson No. 2 CURRENT ELECTRICITY

The flow of electrical current along a wire is very similar to the flow of water in a pipe. We know that the amount of water which flows in a pipe depends upon the pressure under which it flows and upon the resistance offered by the pipe. In like manner, the amount of current flowing in a wire depends upon the pressure under which it flows and the resistance of the wire.

The unit of electrical pressure is known as the volt and corresponds to pounds per square inch in case of water pressure. The amount of water which flows through a pipe in a second is usually measured in gallons per second and the amount of current which flows along a wire in a second is measured in coulombs per second. A coulomb is a quantity of electricity and when one colomb of electricity flows per second we have a current of one ampere.

Just as the amount of water which flows in a pipe depends not only upon the pressure but upon the resistance of the pipe, so the amount of current which flows along a wire under a given pressure depends upon the resistance of the wire. The unit of this electrical resistance is known as the OHM.

When a wire has a resistance of one OHM and a pressure of one VOLT is necessary to force through it a current of one AMPERE.

Briefly, therefore, we have the following fundamental units in the electrical circuit:

VOLT-the unit of Pressure. AMPERE-the unit of Current.

OHM-the unit of Resistance To make water flow toward a certain points it is necessary to raise the level of the water above that point, or in other words to a higher potential. Similarly, to make a current of electricity flow from one point to another it is necessary to raise the potential of the first point which will cause the current to flow from the point of higher potential to the point of lower. The pressure which causes the flow we call the difference in potential.

Having explained the units of electricity and their relations to the tween these units. This law was first enunciated by Dr. G. S. Ohm and is indispensable to a proper knowledge of the relations existing between pressure, current and resistance in an electric circuit.

The law briefly stated is as follows-"THE CURRENT IN A CON-DUCTOR IS EQUAL TO THE PRESSURE DIVIDED BY THE

> PRESSURE CURRENT =

RESISTANCE

The importance and extreme value of this law cannot be over-estimated and the student of radio should understand it thoroughly.

The difference between the set using the honeycomb coils and the regenerator using the two variometers and the variocoupler lies in the fact that the former will give better results on longer wave lengths, while most of the latter type of set will work on wave lengths over 600 to 800 meters. The honeycomb coil set is all right, but for short wave lengths the variocoupler and variometer circuit is hard to beat. These circuits are both regenerative, while the De Forest circuit you mention is not regenerative. All three circuits are excellent in their fields, and it is a hard matter to compare the relative merits of them. Each is supreme in its class.

RADIO OPERATORS TO BE EXAMINED HERE ON APRIL 5

Examinations for commercial and amateur radio operators' licenses will be held here April 7 by Radio Inspector W. Van Norstrand, Jr., who will arrive from headquarters of the navigation service in Norfolk, Va. Mr. Rogers stated Tuesday that the examinations will be given in the civil service offices in the federal building.

Considerable interest has been aroused in Atlanta and the vicinity by the installation here of numerous sets. The Constitution radio, WGM; has contributed to a large extent in centering the attention of the general public on the possibilities in this field.

Loud Speaker With Crystal Detector Very Little Help

Amateurs are writing in to The Constitution asking how they may connect a loud speaker to a set that uses a crystal detector. This can not be done unless the signals are already being received so loud that the receivers can not be worn with comfort. The average loud speaker will not make the signals any louder; it will simply concentrate the sound to a certain extent and take away some of the tinny sound as heard in the receiver when they are put on the lable.

or the tinny sound as heard in the receiver when they are put on the table.

Another thing that can not be done with any degree of success is adding amplifiers to a crystal set. If the beginner is going to add the amplifiers he may just as well install a vacuum tube detector also, as the battery will have to be purchased anyway. Using amplifiers with a crystal set is very apt to make the set "noisy" and the operator will hear all kinds of squeaks and squeaks. This is especially true when the detector is being put in adjustment.

In the past seven weeks John North Willys, president of the Willys-Overland factory, bas traveled more than 17,000 miles by rail and talked with more than 5,000 business men and bankers, making a complete business survey.

The data compiled on this four has made him one of the most sought men in the country, by financial and business men. He has the data on condiness men. He has the data of conde-tions as they exist, and has made a careful forecast of what they will be in the months to come, based upon his first-hand information. What it has in the months to come, based upon his first-hand information. What it has cost this busy executive, seven weeks' time and many hundreds of dollars, to find, is yours, if you will just tune up to WGM Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock sharp.

Mr. Willys has consented to make a short talk to listeners in on The Constitution's radio service. This is the first occasion when this privilege has been extended to any individual by The Constitution. When invited to give our radio fans the benefit of this exhaustive study of business. Mr. Willys at first hesitated, saying that he had never had stage fright, whether addressing the great financial powers that be, or the great selling powers that sell his merchandise, but that the idea of speaking to a vast invisible audience assembled at points covering a radius of a thousand miles, was too stupendous for comprehen-was too stupendous for comprehension.

"I thought that, when at one time in my career in the automobile business I did a business of more than $5.000,000 on a total capital of $68,000, that I had accomplished a marvelous feat, but this is as nothing as compared to the wonders of wireless telephony and many other great developments going on around us now. Truly we have just begun to live, just begun to learn, and if my little message will interest radio fans. I will be only too glad of the opportunity of giving them my message," stated Mr. Willys.

BY RADIO TONIGHT Wire for Aerial Must Be Straight

And 100 Feet Long

The serial is a point that has not yet been thoroughly cleared up in the minds of many beginners. The aerial should be composed of one wire about 100 feet long. Remember that two wires each 50 feet long will not give the same results and also that the aerial should run all in one direction. The aerial that is full of bends is not very efficient and a straight line aerial is far superior. The lead-in should always be taken from one end, as the T aerial is not particularly good for receiving. The short end of such an aerial is absolutely wasted, and is not helping the set a single bit. The indoor aerial is not much good unless there are several stages of amplification used, and is far below the outdoor aerial in efficiency. Several people have written in, disputing this claim, but probably their outdoor aerials have not been constructed correctly. The indoor aerial will not work with a crystal set unless the owner is located very near the station that he wants to receive.

The wire in the aerial should be of copper of almost any size as long as it is strong enough to support its own weight. Remember that some of the smaller sizes of wire will not withstand the rigors of a sleet storm, and the owner does not want to keep erecting a new aerial every time it comes down.

During the time the young woman is asleep she will be placed in the George Muse. Peachtree window and will remain on public view until taken out of the window and back to the theater. Arrangements will be made to handle traffic in front of the window so that all people will have an opportunity to see her.

The committee of business men who will be on the stage and in the radio-station is composed of P. Thornton Marye, prominent architect; Julian V. Boehm, president of the Civitan club and director of the chamber of commerce; Robert L. Troy, secretary of the junior chamber of commerce; G. M. Constitution's Monthly Retailers' Review

There is no question but what a wave of economy has swept over the country. It has been the logical reaction from the intoxicated extravagance of the free and easy times which prevailed up to the lirst part of 1920.

But just as public extravagance went to extremes and influence retailers to go to extremes by coloring their perspective, so the present "economy streak" is very likely to be misinterpreted and cause many stores to plunge into a dangerous price featuring policy.

That the thrift tendency of consumers must be recognized and metwith a sympathetic understanding, is obvious. Stores have been justice. fied in emphasizing price to a considerable extent, during 1921. It has been a sound policy. Yet the reports we are receiving from all over the country, concerning the attitude of merchants toward their advertising now indicate that too many of them are planning to carry the emphasis of price altogether too far during the coming season and year. This tendency is so dangerous that we believe it is time to sound a Admitting that people are more careful in buying; more cautious in spending their money; more exacting in what they get for it; it does in spending their money; more exacting in what they get for it; it does not in any sense dismiss the necessity for advertising appeals which create dears and stimulate wants. So much emphasis has been put on price during the past year and so much of it has been "trumped up" rather than sincerely genuine, that it is no longer the attraction that it was. The far seeing spore owner will realize that the featuring of price excessively to the exclusion of more important appeals is going to be a serious mistake. He will appreciate that his institution in order to win and hold the favorable opinion of the public, and progressively build up its reputation as a high-grade dependable store, must take the lead in keeping its advertising free from constant empty bargain screaming. He will sell goods, not prices.

Boys' Wear. Below are specific suggestions particularly relating to the April campaign for different merchandise lines.

April with its Easter, its confirmations and approaching graduations can be made a big month in the boys' department of every store where the management is alive to the month's opportunities. Every one of these events emphasizes the need of new apparel for boys. Warmer weather naturally increases outdoor activities. All these things should be taken advantage of fully, in promoting the sale of boys' clothing and furnishings.

The tendency of parents to economize even on the children's clothing should not be a justification for featuring cheap poorly made goods. What people get for their money has a farreaching influence; and poor quality has a definitely negative influence on future patronage. The only real way to appeal to economical instincts at this time, is to emphasize the economy of wear rather than the economy of price; to feature impressively how your clothes for boys are made to give long and satisfactory service. The advantage of two pants suits will have a favorable appeal at this particular time and should be featured in an extensive way.

Men's Furnishings

Men's Furnishings.

Aside from its profit possibilities, the furnishing department's great value is its ability to keep men coming to the store; steadily impressing them with the advantages and desirability of the store's selections and merchandising values. Some customers through actual necessity or because they have become psychologized to extreme economy, may be disposed to extreme economy, may be disposed to restrict their purchases of cloth-ing, but will feel quite free to amply ing, but will feel quite free to amply supply themselves with furnishings. To try to get along without ample assortments in the furnishings department during such a time as this, will os umop spois deep of, 'sseugenq ies be letting many a good customer form the habit of going to some other store and make it just so much harder to low that they are disappointing to customers, will make the situation harder instead of helping it. Be sure you have assortments large enough to you have assortments large enough to be interesting and to make buying thoroughly satisfactory.

Men's Clothing. We are optimistic in regard to the future of the retail clothing business. However, we believe it wise to keep advance purchases for fall down to the lowest possible point consistent advance purchases for last down to the lowest possible point consistent with safety. While it is our opinion that there is a persistent effort on the part of manufacturers to reduce the cost of every factor which enters into the manufacture of clothing, we do not believe that the lowest possible point has yet been reached. Naturally if the majority of retailers follow this advice in their early purchases for fall, it will result in a slight temporary blow to the clothing manufacturing industry. But in the long run it will have a good effect. It will speed up the final readjustment of the clothing industry, and eventually result in better values that the public will buy more freely. Our advice is to buy your clothing from hand to mouth just as closely as you date.

Such a policy will work out most profitably in the long run.

Furniture.

There is a natural tendency on the part of every housewife to beautify the home for spring. During spring housecleaning time, she is particularly nousecleaning time, she is particularly sensitive to furniture advertising, and an especially vigorous campaign during April is strongly recommended. A close watch should be kept of the building industry as new homes usually mean liberal investments in furniture and home furnishings. In communities where such information is available, personal letters to new home owners are advised. Convenient terms of payments are obviously quite an attraction during the present period, and while it is essential that your public know that it can purchase furniture at your store on fiberal credit terms, the greatest care should be exercised to keep within the bounds of dignity in featuring the credit policy. Much of the most desirable trade who are forced to buy on installments, will be attracted to the institution which has the atmosphere of catering to the better trade.

millinery business at all times—will take greater importance then usual this season. It is not urged that the summer season be anticipated in April but new hats and new styles for the immediate period should be featured. Sports hats sultable for wear with tweed suits should be featured in a wide range of colors, modes and prices. The high-grade millinery store must maintain an exclusive atmosphere at all times—and while attractive values must be featured there should at no time be any sensational should at no time be any sensational sales conducted in any way apt to give particular women an unfavorable im-pression about the style character of your goods.

Wemen's Wear.

Successful ready-to-wear departments are invariably built primarily upon the style value in their garments. But it should be remembered that very often the entire store is judged largely by its offerings in the ready-to-wear departments. This season it is especially important that every division of the ready-to-wear department have a reasonable assortment of garments of good material, tailored to stand hard service, at reasonable cost. There are bound to be a large number of customers looking primarily for service quality in their a large number of customers looking primarily for service quality in their apparel; and salespeople should be cautious when serving them, to make certain that they are shown goods likely to give long service, even if not so expertly designed as your better style garments.

New York, March 28 .- While not active at any time during the session the cotton market was remarkably steady today, considering the news at hand, and closed unchanged to 12 at hand, and closed unchanged to 12 points net higher, some of the late positions making new high levels in the last half hour. The stehdines was chiefly explained by local covering and a little Wall street buying on further rains in the eastern belt. Efforts were made to minimize the effects of these rains, but the fact that the eastern belt forecast indicated further precipitation, to be followed by colder weather made it seem evident that it would be see rail days at best before farm preparations could be resumed in the eastern belt. Emphasis was given to these conditions by a private crop report in which the probable acreage increase the coming season was placed at only 3 per cent.

The report stressed the fact that there has been too much rain in the eastern districts and said that even in Texas and Oklahoma, where conditions are more favorable than elsewhere in the belt, the start is a little late. It called attention to a very general apprehension of serious boll weevil damage.

The principal influences operating against an advance today were the labor difficulties in the New England.

against an advance today were the labor difficulties in the New England textile districts, and unfavorable reports from the dry goods market.

It was said that goods were freely offered at the trading levels of yesterday and that Rhode Island mills were able to offer spot deliveries of goods in practically any amount, not. goods in practically any amount, not-withstanding the fact that the mills had been closed by strike for ten or had been closed by strike for ten or cleven weeks, suggesting both a slow demand and abnormally heavy stocks. It is understood that the shipping of cotton will continue from the local stock and that before the movement culminates, the clearances from New York will probably reach 25,000 bales. From 17.63, the low point of the forenoon. May contracts advanced to 17.77 near the close, and October rose from 16.70 to 16.80.

NEW YORK SPOTS. New York, March 28.—Spot cotton, steady; midding, 17.90. SLIGHT ADVANCE

IN NEW ORLEANS New Orleans, March 28 .- While the cotton market had a very steady un-dictione throughout the session today, price did not move far, standing at small advances the day through, and rising to their highest in the late trading when the list was 9 to 12 points higher than the close of yesterday, with May up to 16.52. Last day, with May up to 16.52. Last prices showed net gains on the day of 8 to 10 points with May at 16.50. For the steadiness the rainy weather over the belt was mainly responsible, along with fears that the rains would continue and that high water in the middle belt would reach a still higher stage and flood an increased area of cotton country before it would begin to subside. Operations on the long side, on the basis of these features, were held within bounds by reports that the rains in west Texas had long side, on the basis of these features, were held within bounds by reports that the rains in west Texas had been very beneficial, by claims of an increased acreage, taking the belt as a whole, and by the increasing magnitude of labor disturbances, both in this country and in England.

A private bureau forecast of an increase in the acreage of 10 percent attracted a great deal of attention, but was offset to a considerable extent by another forecast which placed the increase at only 3 per cent. Moreover, it was the quite general opinion among traders that anything favorable that might be said about acreage was more than balanced by the further serious delay to new crop preparations which a large part of the interior said would result from prevailing wet weather.

Mail Order Shares Strong in Market

BY R. L. BARNUM

Mail order shares were strong today, Sears Roebuck leading with Mail order shares were strong today, Sears Roebuck leading with a new high record for the year. There is a large short interest in this stock becoming frightened over reliable information obtained in Wall street that farmers are buying equipment and supplies more liberally. Estimates were put out early in the day that copper export for the first quarter of this year would foot up 170,000,000 pounds, which would be an increase of 12,000,000 over the same period of last year. The edge was taken off this favorable statement later in the day, however, when the price for copper for delivery here at home up to the end of May was cut a quarter of a cent.

The first cost of a wagon and horse is not only less than a motor truck, but the upkeep and the wages of a driver are less.

Shareholders Meeting.

Illinois Central shareholders are scheduled to meet on April 19 to vote on the proposition of the directors to authorize $50,000,000 7 per cent preferred stock to be sold from time to time to raise money to make improvements especially at the Chicago terminals. It was reported here today in banking circles that it is the intention of the company's bankers, Kuhn Loeb & Co., to sell some of the new preferred stock as soon as it is authorized. Of course the company could not sell any of the outstanding stock at par. But money could be borrowed for less than 7 per cent on bonds convertible into the outstanding stock. It remains to be seen what action will be taken by the shareholders as a whole. Some of them, however, are known to be opposed to the proposed plan of putting 7 per cent preferred shares ahead of the outstanding stock.

In view of the widespread textile strikes and the approaching troubles in the coal industry, Wall street was interested in today's dispatches from Chicago indicating that in one important line of trade where wage negotiations are being carried on between highly organized labor and employers, the rule of reason is being applied.

Cuts in Profits. Cuts in Profits.

Cuts in Profits.

Realizing that the public was still on a buyers' strike and that raw materials were cheaper, manufacturers of clothing have made drastic cuts in profits. Labor has been the only end of that industry holding back a readjustment. Today's Chicago dispatches state that an agreement has practically been reached between representatives of the National Garment Workers and the clothing manufacturers for a reduction in wages, for turers for a reduction in wages, for less interference by the unions, for co-operation in getting down costs. Employers asked for a 25 per cent cut

The reduction may be only 15 or 121-2 per cent. But even the smaller amount, with co-operation, will make a big difference in the existing cost situation. It is believed here that if an agreement is reached at Chicago which will affect 40,000 men, similar adjustments will be made at Roches-ter, Cleveland, Baltimore and other large clothing manufacturing centers.

The market continued to be highly professional, but with the bears on the defensive. More interesting than the stock market perhaps is the bond market, which held strong today and in some quarters current rise in bonds and to be due to anticipation of reduction in federal reserve rediscount rate. We understand that time money is in increasing supply, with leaders willing to make loans for longer maturities than has been the case for a long time.

The job of eliminating short interest in Sears-Roebuck made further progress today, and it is our opinion that around the top buying was altogether atlisfactory.

Studebaker, which was sold yesterday, apparently to give the whole market an air of unsetlement, came back today, and the stock is now within a point of the high and it would not be surprising if a new high was imade before many days.

While we look for more or less of a trading market, we believe that the great amount of loanshe funds available is a tremendous handicap for bears to struggle under.

Steel Foundries is in a position where the stock will start shead when sentiment is a little more buillish. In other words, it is a stock to buy in a time like the present.

The coal atrike has been up for consideration for so long that its occurrence should not bring wholesale liquidation.

Kansas City reserve bank says further improvement in conditions throughout its district has come within the last thirty days with farmers reducing their debts and increasing deposits.

The market acts well and it our opinion it should be bought.

New York, March 28.—Excepting the tax exempt 34s, which made a nominal decline, all the Liberty bonds and Victory notes showed gains at the close of today's active dealings, several making new high records for the movement.

Elsewhere dealings were notable for the higher range of speculative rails, buying of these issues embracing an unusual number of convertible or refunding bonds. Danish, Dutch and Norwegian bonds were acknowledged to the foreign divisions, French and Belgian offerings casing with Philippine Railway 5s, Chinese Bailway 5s, Havana Electric 5s and Argentine 5s. Total sales, par value, $15,598,000.

New York, March 28.—The market for cof-fee futures was reactionary today. It opened 8 to 11 points lower because of less favor-Santos and other Brazilian points and considerable hedge selling against lower cost and freight offers. The market closed rather easy at 7 to 9 points net declins. Macontrocts early in the day sold at 9.420, but dropped later to 9.350 and the whole market closed at or near the lowest of the day. Owing to the quieter spot market and the change in Brazilian markets there was less support through commission houses than was noted on Monday. Sales were estimated at about 42,000 bags. May, 9.37; July, 9.30; September, 9.18; December, 9.18; May, 9.18.

Spot coffee was less active at 10 to 10 ac or Rio 7s and 13 % to 15c for Santos 4s. Cost and freight offers were unchanged to a little easier, including Bourbon 2s and 5s at 13.25 to 13.50, part Bourbon 3s and 5s at 13.25 to 13.50, and Rio 7s, 9.65 to 9.70, American credits.

DULLNESS RULES IN STOCK MARKET

New York, March 28 .- Dullness was the most noteworthy feature of the today's stock market. The turnover of barely 650,000 shares was the smallest of any full session since the middle of the month.

Price movements were in keeping with these apathetic conditions. Changes or fluctations of more than 1 point were almost entirely restricted to low-priced or speculative issues under professional control.

Developments bearing upon market values offered little incentive to the long or short accounts. Further price advances in steel products were taken as a matter of course and an extension of the New England industrial disturbances was without perceptible influence. Minor, or secondary steels, equip-

Minor, or secondary steels, equipments and motors, as represented by Gulf States, Crucible, Vanadium, Virginia Iron, Lima Locomotive common and preferred, American Locomotive, Baldwin Locomotive, Pullman, General Electric and Electric Storage Battery made gross gains of 1 to 4 points.

Sears-Roebuck supplemented yesterday's substantial gains, and leathers, copper and gas and express company issues were prominent in the extended movement of the final hour. Highgrade rails were sluggish, despite more excellent February earnings. Mexican Petroleum made a bet gain of almost 2 points.

The money market reflected the listless course of investment stocks, a 41-4 per cent rate ruling throughout for call loans. Predictions of an early cut in the local federal reserve rediscount rate were not abared by informed banking interests.

Cables quoting the German chancellor to the effect that his government would not be able to meet latest demands of the reparations commission were without adverse effect unon foreign exchanges. Sterling railied from the early low quotations and allied bills were stendy. Even the German mark recovered slightly from its minimum of the previous day.

"The World's Champion."

A champion star in a knock-out picture is the ringer attraction at the Howard theater this week. Adapted from the play by Thomas Londen and A. E. Thomas, this is one of the best Paramount pictures in which Wallace Reid has starred. The story concerns the son of a British commoner, who falls in love with a lady of the nobility, is rebuked by his father, goes to America and in seven years becomes the middleweight champion of the world. He returns to England tarashes former rival and then is accepted by the girl after he confides to her that he is now an attorney-at-law, having taken up law after retiring from the fight game, the undefeated champion. (At the Howard.)

that has appeared here in some time.
Sullivan and Meyers, in a farcical comedy skit called "They Auto Know Better," bring a new version of satirical comedy intermingled with popular songs and dances.
The Andrieff trio may safely be called a terpsichorean gem. these dancers have an international revue of dances of different nations, including fancy, Russian, ballet and modern ideas.
The Henri sisters, two attractive twins, with popular songs and musical selections, and Heras and Wills, comedy and songs, complete the bill. "A Question of Honor."

(At the Criterion.)

While on location in the Rocky mountains, the male members of the Anita Stewart company narrowly missed being drafted into service to fight the forest fires that were raging in the vicinity of the Stone & Webster construction camp, where the film people made their headquarters. The star was filming exterior scenes for "A Question of Honor," which is now at the Criterion theater. As Miss Stewart was the only girl in the cast, the forestry draft would have taken everybody, but fortunately for the picture, the flames were brought under control before they reached the district in which the company was working. (At the Grand.)

The excellent all-star vaudeville bill which is being offered at Loew's Grand theater for the first half of the week will conclude its engagement here with tonight's performances. Ward and King in a hilarious comedy concoction continue to be the hit of the show. Both boys are excellent dancers and have a gire excellent dancers and have a gire of patter that never fails to get a hand.

By Women Proves Result of Error

New York, March 28.—Police Commissioner Enright today lifted the ban on smoking by women in public as suddenly as he clamped it down last night, when he learned that Alderman night, when he learned that Alderman McGuinness's anti-smoking ordinance had never been passed by the board of aldermen or signed by Mayor Hylan.

Hylan.
Daniel W. F. McCoy, an employe in the city clerk's office, was led forth, caparisoned in sackcloth and ashes as official "goat" for an error that had set pro and even anti-smoking women on the warpath from the Batttery to the far reaches of Harlem. McCoy, it was explained, was charged with clipping the official city record for resolutions and ordinances that have been adopted and approved by the mayor and sending them along to the proper officials for enforce-

McCoy was still too much overcon by the wrath that had descended upon his head to explain just how he hap-pened to include the anti-smoking bill in his list of ordinances adopted and city Clerk Cruise rallied to Mc Coy's defense, however, and intimated broadly that the clerk's office by no means had a corner on "ivory."

Had Police Commissioner Enright or his aides read the purported ordinance carefully, he declared, they would have discovered it was not a

SURE WAY TO GET RID OF BLACKHEADS

to de this get two ounces of calonite powder two due to far two ounces of calonite powder two any carge store—sprinkle a little on a hot we sponge—rub over the blackheads briskly—with the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply a surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads are simply a surprised from the powder and secretions from the lody that form in the pores of the skin—pinching and squeezing only cause irritation, make large pores, and do not get them out after they become hard. The calonite powder and the water simply disadve the blackheads so they wash right, our leaving the pores free and clean and in their atural condition. Anabody troubled with these unsightly blemishes abculd certainly try this simple surthod—"fad",)—

EADE'S PILLS

A FEELING of SECURITY When one considers the feeling of security which is given to owners and mortgages of real estate by the protection we afford against loss or litigation from defective titles, it is not a matter of surprise that the services of this company are being so generally availed of by those making investments in real estate.

We have been insuring titles to real estate in Fulton and De-Kalb Counties for the past twenty-five years.

Marietta-Decatur RepavingHeldUp By Mayor's Veto

Plans for immediate repaving o Marietta-Decatur streets were block

Marietta-Decatur streets were blocked Tuesday by Mayor Ley, who vetoed the ordinance passed by council at its last meeting, on the ground that the specifications drawn and adopted for the work are in conflict with an ordinance passed by council in 1915 which, the mayor stated, requires the Georgia Railway and Power company to pay the full cost of bases for its tracks on streets of the city.

The mayor said the specifications assess only a part of this cost against the company, and would result in the city having to pay $30,000 or $40,000 that should be paid by the company. He said he had consulted with the city attorney before acting.

Contract for the paving was awarded to the McDougald Construction company. The project was to extend from Jones avenue on Marietta street to Yonge street on Decatur, a distance of more than one mile.

Two alternatives will present themselves to council—one the repeal of the ordinance of 1915, and the other selves to council—one the repeal of the ordinance of 1915, and the other authorizing new specifications in com-pliance with the present law. The veto message will be read in council at its meeting next Monday.

Twice while the jury was out there were rumors that a quick verdict was to be reached. Shortly after midnight, when the talesmen had been out little more than an hour, a conference was called between counsel for defense and Judge Wasservogel. It was then believed that the court would order the jury locked up for the night.

Five minutes after this, the balliffs announced that the jury wished to rejort. Crowds which had been waiting in the corridors swarmed back into the courtroom noisily and Judge Wasservogel rapped for order.

Aphasia Victim Found Wandering In Atlanta Park

A neatly dressed young man, believed by physicians at Grady hospital to be a victim of aphasia, was found by Patrolman C. F. Preston at 10 o'clock Tuesda, night wandering around acting queerly near Constitution springs, in Grant park.

At first appearance the officer hough the man was drunk and later they decided that he was suffering from poisoning. Both of these impressions were found to be incorrect after the man was examined thoroughly at Grady. A stomach pump was used in an effort to determine whether he was suffering from poisoned whisky. No trace of alcohol was found in his system, it was stated.

After having been at the hospital for an bour the man incoherently mumbled "Carlton" in answer to questions asked him by attendants as to his name, Whether this was his surname or Christian name, could not be ascertained. The patient immediately after a semi-rational spell lapsed into a hysterical state. He complained that the electric lights were "green parrots laughing at him" and other hallucinations.

Police believe that inquiries will be made concerning the man, if he has relatives in Atlanta. A neatly dressed young man, be
